Empathy

"Kindness is a beautiful and endearing quality. It represents the essence of being friendly, generous, and considerate. This remarkable trait has the power to bring happiness to others and create a positive impact through simple acts, such as offering your bus seat to someone in need or making a comforting cup of tea for a colleague at work.

Embracing kindness is not just a choice; it's a path to boosting confidence, taking control of our emotions, and nurturing a profound sense of happiness. Moreover, kindness can be a lifeline for those who feel isolated, reminding them that they are not alone in this world. The beauty of kindness lies in the fact that anyone can give it without losing anything in return.

"Kindness is not what you do, but who you are." This simple yet profound statement reflects the essence of kindness. It stands for K - kind, I - innocent, N - nice, D - decent, N - noble, E - elegant, S - special, S - success. People are not solely judged by their achievements or talents; their kindness and behaviour play a vital role in shaping their character.

However, in today's fast-paced world, the practice of kindness seems to be waning. Anger issues, anxiety, and rudeness have become barriers to the simple act of being kind. Contrast this with thirty years ago, when people readily extended a helping hand to one another. Neighbours were like family, and trust was not merely a concept but a way of life. It was a time when people helped each other without expecting anything in return, and love and compassion were abundant.

Unfortunately, in the current climate, road rage, disrespect, and acts of violence seem to dominate the headlines. Trust is hard to come by, and the world longs for a return to the kindness that once defined our society. The challenge is for each of us to rediscover the value of kindness.

Remember, kindness doesn't come with a price tag. It can be a small compliment or a grand gesture, but it always holds significance. So, make it a mission to sprinkle kindness wherever you go. The world needs it now more than ever."

My Dream place

My dream place is a metaphorical island, a small bungalow type building perched on a ledge high up on a mountain, overlooking a vast sea of forest and greenery. The house itself is small in its own cosy kind of way.

It is almost entirely made up of wood the thick panelled mahogany walls and the varnished floor shimmer in the light of the regularly twinkling lanterns drifting from side to side hypnotically hanging from the ceiling like the water in a small mountain stream rippling on an early morning. The roof stretches up for what seem miles. It has five thick beams across it and the unfinished trunk of a tree stands in the middle of the floor where it takes most of the responsibility of holding up the roof, tall and proud like a king of old, its bark still attached to the trunk and large knot holes where branches once were.

These are several chairs arranged in a communal circle around the fire. A large ornate fireguard stands in front of the fireplace, it is polished brass work, the craftsmanship of a true master. On the guard on either side sits two heavily detailed bronze lions whose bodies are as life-like as the real things down to the last.

Doesn't this feel like an ideal place to be??
