Balancing Fun with Homework

School life is a constant balancing act. Between classes, homework, projects, and exams, it's easy to feel overwhelmed. Many students believe that spending every spare minute studying is the only way to succeed. In reality, working non-stop can leave you feeling tired, stressed, and less productive.

It's also important to remember that everyone works differently. Some people study best in complete silence, while others prefer soft music in the background. Some like finishing homework as soon as they get home, while others need a short break first. Discovering what helps you stay focused can make studying feel less like a chore and more like a habit.

The key to staying motivated is balancing work and relaxation. Study with full focus for an hour or two, then reward yourself with a short break. Stretch, listen to music, text a friend, have a snack, or simply refresh your mind. Taking a step back when overwhelmed can help you return feeling focused and energized.

Your hobbies are just as important as your studies. Whether it's playing a sport, reading, painting, dancing, or listening to music, doing something you enjoy helps reduce stress and keeps you motivated. Rather than thinking of free time as a distraction, see it as something you've earned after completing your responsibilities, and as a way to learn something new.

Remember, success isn't just about scoring good marks. It's about managing your time wisely, staying healthy, and making room for the things that make you happy. When you learn to balance work with fun, both your grades and your well-being will benefit.

Mother Teresa

A Life of Love & Service

Mother Teresa, born Anjezë Gonxhe Bojaxhiu on 26 August 1910 in Skopje (then part of the Ottoman Empire, now North Macedonia), dedicated her life to serving the poorest of the poor. She felt a call from God at the age of eighteen to become a missionary and joined the Sisters of Loreto.

In 1929, she came to India and began teaching at St. Mary's School in Calcutta. In 1946, she experienced her 'call within a call'—a deep desire to serve the destitute living on the streets. With permission from her superiors, she left the convent and began her work among the poor.

In 1950, she founded the Missionaries of Charity, a congregation that serves the sick, the hungry, the homeless, the aged, and the dying. The mission soon spread across India and to many other countries, offering love, care, and dignity to those who had none.

Mother Teresa believed, "Not all of us can do great things. But we can do small things with great love." Her selfless service, compassion and unwavering faith touched millions of lives.

She received many prestigious awards, including the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979, the Bharat Ratna in 1980 and numerous other international honors.

Mother Teresa passed away on 5 September 1997, but her legacy continues to inspire the world to choose kindness, service and love in every action.

MONEY BOARD

A loan is money borrowed from a bank, financial institution, or another person with the promise to repay it within a certain period. People take loans for many reasons such as buying a house, paying for education, starting a business, purchasing a vehicle, or meeting medical expenses. When a person takes a loan, they must repay it with an extra amount called interest, which is the cost of borrowing money. The interest depends on the total amount borrowed and the repayment period. Loans can be very helpful when used wisely because they allow people to meet important needs even if they do not have enough money at the time. For example, education loans help students study, business loans help entrepreneurs start or expand their businesses, and home loans help in buying houses. However, loans should be taken carefully. Borrowing more than a person can afford to repay can lead to financial stress and debt. It is important to borrow only when necessary, plan repayments properly, and pay installments on time. Good financial planning helps maintain a good credit record and avoid financial problems.

Remember:

- Borrow only when necessary
- Plan your repayments and pay installments on time.
- Financial planning today leads to a secure tomorrow.
