Grandparents are the family's treasure, the founders of a loving legacy, the greatest storytellers, and the guardians of our tradition. At WHIS, this day was celebrated with pomp and show. Grandparents of pupils in Grades 5, 10 & 12 graced the occasion with their grandchildren and participated wholeheartedly in the event. If he leaves the goose with the fox, the fox will eat it. If he leaves the goose with the beans, the goose will eat them. How does he get everyone across safely?

The pillar of every Indian household!

Here is a story about the unsung heroes of our motherland: India... They've always been around you, although their effort hasn't been much appreciated. These are the ones because of whom our Indian culture of staying in and growing together remains strong. The only ones whose endeavours were never considered as those of the ones in highly-reputed fields. The only ones who never opposed whatsoever the situation might be. The ones teaching us how to stay strong even if a storm's right in front of you. HOUSEWIVES.

Let's not rush to the present! I believe we all know Chattrapati Shivaji Maharaj, the widely known member of the Bhosale dynasty. I'm pretty sure we all have seen statues of him all around Maharashtra, haven't we? Do you know who helped him shape his future to this extent? Moreover, who was the one giving him such an impeccable education? It was his mother, Jijabai. Even though she was a housewife, she had a GREAT influence on the life of Shivaji and it was immensely important. All of the skills that were ever taught to Shivaji Maharaj, the predominant ones, were enlightened by Jijabai. She taught him the competence of respecting women, dreaming big, and establishing an independent Hindu kingdom. She also instilled in him a respect and honour for all saints and great men. Not just Shivaji Maharaj, but even The Great Man Gandhiji had his mother influencing him by all means. Gandhiji learned the fundamental aspects of his soul politics from his mother. His mother Putlibai imparted to him a strong sense of personal ethics and compassion.

Since we've now looked over the importance of mothers, let me help you look over something. All of the great women who have been mentioned above were housewives. Their contribution was never just limited to their homes, but extending till everywhere that we could ever imagine. They've always been the unsung heroes of our nation, and also been overlooked the most.

How many times have you recognized and appreciated the efforts taken by housewives?

The Importance of Teamwork

Hey everyone! Today, I want to share my thoughts on teamwork from my experience playing basketball. Teamwork is essential in sports and life, and I've learned some valuable lessons on the court.

Working Together to Win

When I joined my school's basketball team, I initially thought success depended on individual skills like shooting and dribbling. However, I quickly realized that collaboration is what truly makes a difference.

Passing the Ball

One of the first things we learned was how to pass the ball effectively. If one player tries to do everything alone, the team can't score points. But when we passed the ball, we created better chances to score. This taught me that sharing responsibilities is key to success, whether in sports or in group projects at school. After all, nobody wants to be that one player hogging the ball—unless you enjoy the sound of crickets during team practice! Plus, if you try to score every time, you might end up doing more bench-warming than ball-handling. Trust me, sitting on the sidelines isn't nearly as glamorous as it sounds!

Supporting each other

During practice, we made plenty of mistakes. I mean, if there was an award for missing the hoop, I'd have won a gold medal! But instead of getting upset, we cheered each other on like we were the biggest fans at a rock concert. When I missed a shot, my teammates would say, "Keep trying! You'll get it next time!" It was like a motivational speech, but with less drama and more sweat. This support made me feel like a superstar, even if I was just trying not to trip over my own feet!

Communication is Key!

Another key lesson was the value of communication. On the court, we needed to call for the ball, signal for position changes, and shout out plays—like an intense game of charades. Without clear communication, I'd risk passing to the referee instead of a teammate! This teamwork kept us aligned and prevented awkward moments—making sure we were all on the same page, ready to score together.

Celebrating Success Together

When we finally won a game, it wasn't just about one player's performance; it was about how we all came together. We celebrated like we'd just won the championship of the universe! There were high-fives, goofy dance moves, and plenty of laughter. I learned that success is much sweeter when shared, especially if it ends with snacks!

My basketball experience truly showed me the magic of teamwork. It's not just about individual skills; it's about how we support one another, communicate effectively, and share our victories. Each game reminded me that when we unite as a team, we can tackle challenges and achieve so much more than we could on our own. So, whether you're on the court or in any group activity, always remember: together, we can achieve great results!
